

Community Organizer Opportunity:

Better Boundaries led the successful passage of Proposition 4, which established an Independent Redistricting Commission in the state of Utah. The commission is made up with brilliant political minds and seeks to draw boundaries without regard to partisanship and keep communities together. The Commission's work is kicking off in high gear and Better Boundaries is committed to bringing citizen participation to the redistricting process and ensuring that the state legislature adopts the map of the Independent Commission.

Description of Position:

As a community coordinator, you would be working directly with the organizing director and other community organizers in:

- Coordinating teams of volunteers in phone banking and text banking.
- Working with the earned media team to bring awareness to the work of the independent commission.
- Being the educational voice for the work of the commission in your community.
- Organizing attendance at commission meetings throughout your community.

While the position is unpaid, benefits of the position include:

- Opportunity to work with top consultant talent in the state
- Opportunity to participate in a well-known organization during a pivotal part of the legislative process
- Experience in political organizing, which is often a prerequisite to working in other political campaigns
- Flexible hours and willingness to work with a school schedule
- Letter of Recommendation and Reference
